Comm-Works Announces Vertical Communications Partnership

MINNEAPOLIS – August 10, 2009 - Comm-Works, a leading provider of technology and infrastructure solutions for large corporations and government agencies, announced today it has entered into a reseller agreement with Vertical Communications. Vertical Communications is a leading provider of next-generation IP-based phone systems and voice applications. This agreement further establishes Comm-Works' voice practice with the ability to design, procure, install, and support Vertical's Wave IP, SBX and Xcelerator suite of IP telephony solutions.

"We see vertical as a strategic fit to our network of voice products and services," said Al Lampe, chief executive officer of Comm-Works, "It provides a unique and cost effective way to offer robust VoIP features especially at our customers' remote sites."

"We are very excited to have Comm-Works join our partner network," said Dick Anderson, executive vice president & general manager at Vertical Communications. "Comm-Works and Vertical's go-to-market models are complementary in that both organizations provide solutions at geographically dispersed locations for large enterprises. This synergy is a sound cornerstone for mutual success in providing the right solutions for our joint customers."
